DEBADURLLAV HARICHANDAN, OP

Bhubaneswar, August 24: A day after Excise Minister Prithiviraj Harichandan announced there are plans in place to close all dance bars in the state, the Commissionerate Police Saturday moved in with bulldozers and demolished three illicit liquor manufacturing units at Salia Sahi, here.

Deputy Commissioner of Police (DCP) Prateek Singh said 11,500 litres of illicit alcohol and 50,000 litres of fermented alcohol (pocha) were seized from makeshift units under Maitri Vihar police limits. "Following a tip-off, three special teams led by an Assistant Commissioner of Police (ACP), assisted by three IICs along with SIs and ASIs, arrived at the site and unearthed a secret chamber which was used to manufacture illicit alcohol," Singh said, adding that eight persons have been booked in connection with the matter.

ASSURED PENSION FOR CENTRAL GOVT WORKERS

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

New Delhi, August 24: The Union Cabinet Saturday approved an assured 50 per cent of salary as pension for 23 lakh government employees who joined service under the National Pension System (NPS).

The NPS is applicable for government employees joining the service after April 1, 2004. It was based on the premise of contribution rather than defined benefit applicable for employees prior to the NPS.

Announcing Cabinet decisions, formation and Broadcasting Minister Ashwini Vaishnaw said according to the Unified Pension Scheme (UPS), government employees will now be eligible to get 50 per cent of the average basic pay drawn over the last 12 months before the superannuation as pension

For this full pension or 50 per cent of pay as the pension, he said, the eligibility service length will be 25 years. However, he said, it would be proportionate for a lesser service period up to a minimum of 10 years of service.

NPS subscribers can now opt for the UPS, which offers assured pension applicable from the beginning of the next financial year.

Last year, the Finance ministry set up a committee under Finance Secretary TV Somanathan to review the pension scheme for government employees and suggest any changes, if needed, in light of the existing framework and structure of the NPS.

$30 trillion economy a pipe dream

Prime Minister Narendra Modi's dream of turning India into a $30 trillion economy by 2047 appears to fall far short with a report claiming that it will be possible only if 400 million women are added to the country's workforce by then. The study conducted by a Bangalore-based non-profit suggests that the goal of achieving the desired economy boom would necessitate nearly doubling the current female labour force participation rate (LFPR). However, with only 110 million women projected to join the labour force by then, falling short by another 145 million, the ambition looks far-fetched at the moment

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

New Delhi, August 24: India requires an additional 400 million women in the workforce to contribute USD 14 trillion to the economy which would necessitate nearly doubling the current female labour force participation rate (LFPR) from 37 per cent to 70 per cent by fiscal year 2047, according to a new report.

MIRACULOUS ESCAPE: Wreckage of the helicopter that was flying from Mumbai to Hyderabad after it crashed at Mulshi tehsil in Pune, Saturday. All four occupants, though injured, survived the crash, according to officials

Non-profit The/Nudge Institute has unveiled a new report, Labour Force Participation Distillation Report, outlining a crucial element for India's economic future. The report is based upon Periodic Labour Force Survey (PLFS) over the years.

As the country aims to become a USD 30 trillion economy by 2047, the report highlights the need for a substantial increase in female labour force participation to achieve this goal. According to the report, India requires an additional 400 million women in the workforce to contribute USD 14 trillion to the economy. This would necessitate nearly doubling the current female labour force participation rate (LFPR) from 37 per cent to 70 per cent by fiscal year 2047.

With only 110 million women projected to join the labour force by then, an additional 145 million women need to be integrated to meet this target. The report reveals a stark disparity in job security and recovery between men workforce, the report said. Women predominantly work in low-productivity sectors, such as agriculture and manufacturing, where they face limited advancement. Kanishka Chatterjee, Director

& Head of The/Nudge Prize, emphasised the urgency of this challenge. "India's demographic dividend and dreams of a $30 trillion economy cannot be realised without boosting the participation of women in the workforce," Chatteriee said.

Ratna Bhandar, ASI told Bhubaneswar, August 24: The Shree Jagannath Temple Administration (SJTA) Saturday wrote a letter to the Archaeological Survey of India (ASI) to start the inspection work of the Ratna Bhandar of the 12th-century shrine in Puri before undertaking repair and renovation of the temple vault. SJTA Chief Administrator Arabinda Padhee, in a letter to the ASI DG, urged the Central agency to take over the Ratna Bhandar and initiate its scanning and geophysical investigation using latest technology before starting the conservation, repair and restoration of inner and outer chambers

With both the inner and outer chambers of the treasury empty, the SJTA feels that the inspection works are required amid apprehensions about the presence of some secret tunnels or chambers inside the Ratna Bhandar. The SJTA has also urged the

ASI to conduct the necessary inspection work through IIT or CBRI-like institutions that have expertise in the field while ensuring no adverse impact on the 12th-century shrine. Once the necessary survey and inspection works are completed, the process for the repair works will begin, the SJTA mentioned in the items stored in those containers were shifted to temporary strongrooms inside the temple in two phases in July when the Ratna Bhandar was reopened after 46 years for an inventory of valuables and the repair of its structure. The empty iron chests along with iron and wooden almirahs were shifted in the presence of Justice Biswanath Rath, chairman of an empowered committee and other members of the panel.

The entire proceedings were videographed, Padhee said, after completion of shifting of the empty chests and almirahs, both the inner and outer chambers of the treasury were sealed. Similarly, the room where those containers were stored was also locked and sealed, Padhee said.

Never take health tips from world's oldest people: Scientists

he death of the world's oldest person, Maria Branyas Morera, at the age of 117 might cause many to ponder the secrets of an exceptionally long life, but scientists say it could be best to avoid taking advice on longevity from centenarians themselves.

According to the Guinness World Records website, Branyas believed her longevity stemmed from "order, tranquility, good connection with family and friends, contact with nature. emotional stability, no worries, no regrets, lots of positivity and staying away from toxic people".

However, Richard Faragher, a professor of biogerontology at the University of Brighton, said that in reality scientists were still trying to work out why some people lived beyond the age of 100. Faragher said there were two main theories and they were not mutually exclusive. The first, he said, was that some individuals were essentially just lucky. In other words. iust because centenarians had certain habits, it did not mean those habits were driving their longevity – an error in logic known as "survivorship bias".

"Merely because you have survived smoking 60 a day doesn't mean that smoking 60 a day is good for you," Faragher said.

The second theory, he said, was that centenarians had specific genetic features that equipped them to live a longer life - in other words they were rendered more robust as a result of their genetics.

Faragher said both theories, however, resulted in the same warning: "Never, ever take health and lifestyle tips from a centenarian." He added: "What you see with most centenarians most of the time - and these are generalisations – is that they don't take much exercise. Quite often, their diets are rather unhealthy," noting that some centenarians were also smokers.

"This flies in the face of a lot of epidemiological evidence we have on how to extend your healthy life expectancy," he said, adding that one large study found that not smoking, taking exercise, drinking in moderation and eating five servings of fruit and vegetables a day could increase life expectancy by up to 14 years. "The fact that [centenarians] do many of these unhealthy things and still just coast through [life] says they're either lucky or typically very well endowed [genetically]," he said.

Branyas acknowledged luck had played a role in her long life, while her daughter Rosa Moret once attributed it to genetics. "She has never gone to the hospital, she has never broken any bones, she is fine, she has no pain," Moret told regional Catalan television in 2023.

Faragher added that many of the mooted possibilities for why centenarians live longer could actually be examples of reverse causation. For example, the idea that having a positive mental outlook can help you live for a very long time might, at least in part, be rooted in people being more sanguine because they have better health.

"When was the last time you had a really positive mental attitude and toothache?" he said.

Faragher added one problem was that when considering centenarians, there was a tendency to focus on things that might have aided their survival. "But we don't consider the dis-enablers," he said.

Prof David Gems, a geneticist at University College London, said that while sex was an important factor in longevity with women ageing more slowly than men – he agreed luck was important, noting that one example was the natural variability in ageing rate.

"I work on nematode worms which live for only a couple of weeks," he said. "The worms are genetically identical to one another, and they are kept under identical conditions, but the first worms die of old age at around 10 days, and the last at around 30

But while at an individual level a dose of luck could help explain why some people live beyond 100, experts say there are well-known factors that can help to improve life expectancy at a population level, including improvements in healthcare and hygiene.

cess (to the top). This is why we have raised the demand for castebased Institutional census."

'For the Congress, the caste census is the foundation of policy making. It is a tool for policy making. We cannot make policies in the reality of India without a caste census, he said.

'Just like our Constitution, which is a guide in a way and it is being attacked every day, a caste census, a socio-economic survey an institutional survey will be our second guide," he said.

'We want the data. How many Dalits, Other Backward Classes (OBCs), tribals, women, minorities, and general caste people are there? We are trying to protect the Constitution through this demand for a caste census, he added. Gandhi said the Constitution is not for the 10 per cent of the country's population, it is for all the citizens.

Our aim is to protect the Constitution. This is a protective shield for the poor, farmers and labourers. Without it, the situation would be as it used to be earlier in the times of kings and emperors, who did whatever they wanted," he said.

"The 'caste census' will definitely happen. It cannot be stopped. Neither the caste census nor an economic survey or an institutional survey can be prevented," had he said. "The order of the people has come. The prime minister should accept it and implement it. If he does not do so, someone else will become the prime minister," he said. Talking about skilled workers, such as cobblers, barbers, carpenters, washermen and others, he said, "Certification centres can be opened in all districts in which the network of these skilled workers can be utilised.'

Humans have already transformed or occupied between 70 per cent and 75 per cent of the world's land. Research published in Science Advances found the overlap between human and wildlife populations is expected to increase across 57 per cent of the Earth's land in the next five

"You have places such as forests where there are virtually no people, where we will start to see some more human presence and activities, and interactions with wildlife," said Neil Carter, the principal investigator of the study and an associate professor of environment and sustainability at the University of Michigan in the US.

"People are increasing their pressures and negative impacts on species, which is something that we've seen already for many years. It is part of the cause of the biodiversity-loss crisis that "It is not the wildlife itself which poses a risk, but our behaviour and specific contact with it.

To forecast future overlap between humans and wildlife, researchers at the University of Michigan compared estimates of where people are likely to inhabit land with the spatial distribution areas of more than 22,000 species.

The expansion of human and animal overlap will be most concentrated in regions where human population density is already high, such as India and China, they found. Agricultural and forest areas in Africa and South America will also experience substantial increases of overlap.

However, in some regions the human-wildlife overlap was projected to reduce, including across more than 20 per cent of land in Europe. The research can guide policymakers "to avoid the human and wildlife conflicts and focus more on the conservation of species richness," said Degiang Ma, the lead author of the study and a postdoctoral research fellow at the University of Michigan Institute for Global Change Biology..

Preaching & Practicing

hile we are going to Ukraine and Poland to end violence around the world, it is instructive to see what the world is saying about violence in India. On 9 June 2022, three United Nations Special Rapporteurs wrote to the Modi government regarding our bulldozer justice. Balakrishnan Rajagopal, Fernand de Varennes and Ahmed Shaheed wrote of their concerns regarding: "forced evictions, housing and property demolitions directed against the Muslim minority communities in Khargone district of Madhya Pradesh state, in the Anand district of Gujarat state and in the Jehangirpuri locality and other locations of New Delhi. These arbitrary housing and property demolitions were allegedly ordered by local Governments arbitrarily to punish Muslim minorities and low-income communities for intercommunal conflicts between Hindus and Muslims that had broken out during and after religious processions.

India did not reply to this letter. On 12 July 2023, the European Parliament passed a resolution on Manipur. It said that violence had left at least 120 people dead and 50,000 displaced and has destroyed over 1,700 houses, over 250 churches and several temples and schools. The resolution said that "intolerance towards religious and belief minorities, including Christians, contributes to the violence; that there had been concerns about politically motivated, divisive policies promoting Hindu majoritarianism, and about an increase in activity by militant groups"; and that the European Parliament seeks "the utmost effort to promptly halt the ongoing ethnic and religious violence, to protect all religious minorities, such as Manipur's Christian community, and to pre-empt any further escalation."

In response, India said this was colonial mindset and intrusion into our in-

On 7 March 2024, more than two dozen United Nations human rights experts wrote to the Modi government to "sound the alarm over reports of attacks on minorities, media and civil society in India" and they called for "urgent corrective action." They said: "We are alarmed by continuing reports of attacks on religious, racial and ethnic minorities, on women and girls on intersecting grounds, and on civil society, including human rights defenders and the media."

India did not respond to this (India does not respond to the United Nations though we are keen to be given a seat on its secu-

Let us go further back. On 13 June 2021, the Group of Seven nations, which are advanced economies and liberal democracies, put out a sort of charter. The document was called the G7 and Guest Countries: 2021 Open Societies Statement. The G7 are the US, UK, Canada, France, Germany, Japan and Italy plus the European Union and the guest nations invited this time to the G7 meet were South Korea, India, South Africa and Australia.

The document says that all these nations reaffirm their shared belief in open societies, through democratic values and that they would embrace and encourage others to embrace these eight values, which are listed out. The first is human rights, both online and offline. The second is democracy, including "everyone's right to assemble, organise and associate peacefully, within a system of accountable and trans-

The third is social inclusion, and "full enjoyment of civil and political rights in both physical and digital spheres." Fourth is gender equality. Fifth is freedom of expression, "both online and offline." Sixth is rule of law and independent and impartial judicial system. Seventh is a multilateral system with free and fair trade and global collaboration. Eighth is the "importance of civic space and partnership with diverse, independent and pluralistic civil societies, including human rights defenders, in promoting human rights and fundamental freedoms

These eight apparently were "founding values" which "define our inclusive way of life." They would be promoted by the G7 and guest nations through the following eight steps:

First, "protecting civic space and media freedom, promoting freedom of expression, freedom of assembly and association, and freedom of religion or belief, and by tackling all forms of discrimination.'

Second, "to exchange information and coordinate effective responses to shared threats to human rights, democracy and the rule of law, such as disinformation and arbitrary detention.

Third, to promote economic openness "reasserting our shared economic model which is founded on open markets.'

Fourth, to prevent and tackle corruption. Fifth, to protect the digital civic-space respecting human rights. Sixth, to prioritise gender equality and inclusion. Seventh, to collaborate on science. Eighth, to promote sustainable development goals, specifically to "promote just, peaceful and inclusive societies.'

The G7 and its guests said they would build on these commitments in other multilateral fora. A few points arise from this development. Indian governments generally speaking and this government in particular are hostile to most of the things on the list. The Prime Minister signed the statement and spoke in favour of the Open Societies charter saying India was a natural ally.

Perhaps we are, but the problem is that we cannot be signing these things and then doing the sort of actions that we do at home. Because if we do them, we will have to hear from the United Nations and the European Parliament. And even they are not the only ones.

The US Congress (on Kashmir), the United States Commission on International Religious Freedom (on the so called 'love jihad' laws in various BJP states) and the US State Department (on various atrocities against minorities) have been vocal on India in this same period.

For us to have basic credibility as a global leader wanting violence stopped elsewhere, we should first look at and acknowledge what we have done to ourselves. To not do so opens us to the accusation of rank hypocrisy and also reduces the stature of our globetrotting peaceniks.

THE LATEST VISIT OF MODI IS SEEN IN SOME QUARTERS AS A DAMAGE CONTROL EXERCISE

t is more than two years since Russia started what it calls a 'special military operation' in Ukraine to protest against Ukraine joining NATO which it perceived detrimental to its security interests. Peace eludes the embattled nation caught in the vortex of rivalry between the West and Russia. The war has taken a heavy toll of human life. The UN intervention has been rendered ineffective. Peace initiatives undertaken by stakeholders have also failed to break the Gordian knot.

It is in this backdrop that Prime Minister Narendra Modi paid a nine-hour whirlwind visit to Ukraine in the second leg of his trip after his visit to Poland. His visit to Ukraine has attracted a strategic traction, especially after his meeting with President Putin in Russia last month. Modi's visit to Moscow drew criticism from the US and President Volodymyr Zelenskyy as it coincided with the lethal Russian strike on a children's hospital in Kyiv. Alluding to India's claim of strategic autonomy in maintaining a fine balance between the US and Russia earlier, the US side criticised India's neutrality. Responding to US criticism, Modi during his visit said India is not neutral and on the side of peace echoing his earlier articulation that it is not a 'time for war.' Modi condemned the killings in an implicit rebuke of Putin. The latest visit of Modi is seen in some quarters as a damage control exercise. The West, the US in particular, was critical of India's anodyne stance and expected New Delhi to have articulated a more critical stance not withstanding India's strategic autonomy. Želenskyy had urged Modi to exert his influence to mitigate the conflict in crisis. Considering India's historical and traditional friendship and more importantly, defence relationship with Russia, it is indeed a piquant situation in view of India's evolving strategic relationship with the West, particularly the US. India has, however, navigated the delicate balance with finesse and dexterity upholding the country's national interests. India's principled position on the complex Ukraine imbroglio was articulated in a carefully worded statement by it's the then permanent representative to the United Nations TS Tirumurti during the voting of the USsponsored UN resolution deploring the Russian aggression against Ukraine. It said: "We urge that all efforts are made for the immediate cessation of violence and hostilities. We are also deeply concerned about the welfare of the Indian community, including a large number of students, in Ukraine. The contemporary global order has been built on the UN Charter, international law, and respect for the sovereignty and territorial integrity of states. All members need to honour these principles. Dialogue is the only way to settle disputes...It is a matter of regret that the path of diplomacy was given up. For these reasons, India has chosen to abstain from the resolution." This is a strong statement conveying India's balanced position. India's abstention on USsponsored UN resolutions deploring Russian action should be seen in conjunction with the statement which had its salutary effects on all concerned. It indeed enhanced India's self-esteem among the comity of nations earning applause and appreciation from both sides of the strategic divide and also from Ukraine. The US urged India to use its influence with Russia to protect the rules-based international order.

India has adopted a much calibrated response to Ukraine

Modi's landmark visit to Ukraine is indeed a work in progress as he has maintained communication with Zelenskyy. Modi and Zelenskyy had a telephonic conversation in October 2022 which helped the evacuation of Indian medics to safer place for their repatriation to India. Contact and communications were also maintained at various levels. Ukraine's first deputy minister for foreign affairs Emaine Dzhaparova visited India on a three-day trip ahead of G20 Summit in September, 2023. The visit was the first of its kind from Ukraine after the war. She had also extended an invitation to Modi to visit Ukraine. The strategic significance of Dzhaparova's India visit was attributed to India's Presidency of G20. Kyiv was also expecting an invite to the high table of the G20 summit. New Delhi, however, could not extend invitation to Zelenskyy for its constraints. The G20 New Delhi Summit however, drafted a balanced statement on Ukraine conflict which was appreciated by all concerned.

It was unrealistic to expect any kind of a breakthrough in the Ukraine conflict and Prime Minister Modi had no such illusion. He, however, reiterated and reinforced India's consistent stance on the crisis. His emphasis on respect for sovereignty and territorial integrity was nonetheless a clear message to Putin. Zelenskyy articulated that India being a big power can exert influence to end the war. It can be extrapolated that he contends India is empowering Putin by purchasing crude oil from Russia besides arms and ammunition which in turn is fuelling the war in Ukraine. New Delhi has responded to this narrative by arguing that India's oil import from Russia is market driven, if it is helping Russia's war it was incidental. As a matter of fact, India's arms import from Russia in recent

The geopolitics of Olympic medals

Zaki Laïdi

INDIA IS PERHAPS THE MOST STRIKING EXAMPLE OF HOW GDP CAN BE A POOR PREDICTOR OF OLYMPIC EXCELLENCE  may lie in the correlation between athletic performance and GDP. The 2024 Paris Olympic Games were a case in point: the top seven medal winners – the United States, China, Japan, Australia, France, the Netherlands, and the United Kingdom – are all among the world's 20 largest economies.

This can be partly attributed to demographics: a larger population provides a deeper pool of athletic talent from which to draw. The more populous and developed a country is, the more it is likely to win Olympic medals.

This can also be confirmed empirically. Weighting the total number of medals won by each country by value - three points for gold, two for silver, and one for bronze – reveals that the 12 countries with the highest medal count in Paris are all advanced economies. The G7 countries, which account for 43.5% of global GDP, won 33.8% of all medals. Africa, with a 3% share of the world economy, captured 3.7% of the total. And Latin America, which represents 7.3% of global GDP secured just under 6% of the medals, with 29% of those going

Thy do certain countries to its largest economy, Brazil. Australia, with just 26 million like other Olympic sports such formance is strong, it is far from absolute. Consider, for example, the European Union: despite accounting for 17.5% of global GDP, EU member states won nearly 30% of the medals in Paris. This suggests that European countries' dominance is partly due to their effective national sports policies and deeply rooted athletic traditions. Of course, Europe also benefits from the fact that many Olympic sports were invented there.

Asia, for its part, is too politically and culturally heterogeneous for its Olympic performance to be reduced to a single explanation. While Asia and Oceania are home to three major sporting powerhouses – China, Japan, and Australia – the Indian subcontinent has a relatively modest Olympic record. In fact, India is perhaps the most striking example of how GDP can be a poor predictor of Olympic excellence. Despite a population of 1.4 billion and an economy that represents 7.9% of global GDP in purchasingpower-parity terms, India ranked 71st among medal-winning countries in the 2024 Olympics.

The US and China predictably led the 2024 medal race, winning 12% and 10% of all medals, respectively, largely thanks to their economic might and population size. That said, America's medal count was far lower than its economic power would suggest, given that it accounts for roughly 20% of global GDP. To be sure, economic development and demographics alone are not enough to guarantee Olympic success. Unlocking a country's athletic potential requires effective policies and adequate infrastructure, which is why sparsely populated yet highly developed countries like Australia often punch above their weight, while densely populated countries like Nigeria barely win any medals.

Athletic culture also plays a vital role. African countries, for example, excel in track and field. particularly middle- and longdistance running, largely due to East Africa's deeply-rooted tradition of training at high altitudes. Notably, distance running does not require sophisticated infrastructure or access to high-level training facilities

Although the correlation bepeople, claimed 5% of the medals, as swimming, fencing, and gymwhelmingly dominated by wealthy Western countries and China. For example, French swimming sensation Léon Marchand, who won four gold medals in Paris, trains in the US. Likewise, Algerian goldmedalist gymnast Kaylia Nemour trains in France.

The disparities in Olympic medal counts offer valuable, albeit nuanced, geopolitical insights. At first glance, the 2024 medal count appears to reflect our increasingly multipolar world. With 92 of the 206 participating countries and territories winning medals, the Paris Olympics suggested a more open and competitive global landscape.

Yet, the fact that 50% of these medals were concentrated among G7 countries and China, which together account for 60% of global GDP, shows that there is still a long way to go. While both sports and the world economy are moving toward greater multipolarity, this shift may be slower and more limited than many expect.

Quid pro quo

Sir, This refers to "Congress leadership backs Siddaramaiah," Orissa POST, August 24. The Congress played a safe game by backing the beleagured CM Siddaramaiah in the MUDA scam, even as Opposition BJP and JD(S) bay for his blood. But, the current state of political affairs in Karnataka is seemingly strange. Of late, Karnataka politicians may appear to be at loggerheads in public, but most share warm ties in private. Even when they are politically divided, they enjoy common business interests and familial ties. This 'adjustment politics', as it is referred to, has recently come under stress. The Opposition BJP-JDS and the ruling Congress have been at each other's throats like never before. It is not that realisation has suddenly dawned; they have been prodded into action by their respective central leaderships. The lacklustre BJP has suddenly become belligerent and demands the CM's scalp over the MUDA and Valmiki scandals. In retaliation, Congress government has now decided to embarrass the BJP by speeding up cases against its leaders. In a way, this is a good thing, because it may help expose corrupt deals on both sides. The politics of quid pro quo has been the bane of Karnataka for long, and it won't be a surprise if the rivals bury the hatchet once the dust settles. The only hope is a strong Lokayukta who will go after all political parties and bring the corrupt to book.

Exposing fraud

Sir, This refers to "5-year Sebi ban on Anil Ambani," Orissa POST, August 24. Will it be exaggerated if anyone says that Anil Ambani is a black sheep in the Ambani family? Sebi report says that Anil and 24 others got involved in the diversion of funds from Reliance Home Finance Limited (RHFL) with the assistance of RHFL's top managerial personnel. This sort of alleged fraudulent activities on the part of Anil Ambani under the guise of sanctioning loans drained the public listed company of its resources. The Sebi deserves full appreciation for exposing Anil Ambani of his fraudulent activities of this degree.

WILL SUPPORT CONGRESS-NC ALLIANCE IF THEY ACCEPT TO FOLLOW PDP AGENDA: MEHBOOBA MUFTI

INDO-ASIAN NEWS SERVICE

Srinagar, August 24: The Peoples Democratic Party (PDP) Saturday released its election manifesto for the upcoming Jammu and Kashmir Assembly polls with party president and former chief minister Mehbooba Mufti saying she would support the Congress-National Conference (NC) alliance if they accept the PDP manifesto.

Releasing the PDP manifesto, Mehbooba Mufti said that the issue (for the election) is neither about the restoration of Article 370, nor anything else. "It is a political issue which needs a political solution,' Mufti said.

Speaking to reporters during the manifesto release programme, the PDP president said her party will not fight for the seats but will completely support the Congress-NC alliance if they accept to follow their agenda, which includes the resolution of the Kashmir issue.

Mehbooba Mufti said that power and seats do not matter for PDP but if the party's agenda is accepted, it will extend support to the alliance in Jammu and Kashmir.

Responding to a query, the former Jammu and Kashmir CM also said that there would not be any alliance after the elections with the Bharatiya Janata Party (BJP).

'We had forged an alliance with the BJP to safeguard the identity of Jammu and Kashmir but when the decision has already been taken. the alliance with BJP on the basis of agenda is not possible now,"

The PDP manifesto promises to open traditional routes, provide 200 free units of electricity and mentions that the fight for the peaceful resolution of the Kashmir issue will be taken forward and the dialogue process will be started if the party is elected to power.

By traditional routes, the PDP means the routes between the parts of Jammu and Kashmir across the Line of Control (LoC), the international border and the Line of Actual Control (LAC).

It must be recalled that the PDP BJP government headed by Mehbooba Mufti lost power in June 2018 when the BJP pulled out of the coalition government.

The erstwhile state was then placed under the Governor's Rule. Later: the then Governor Satva Pal Malik dissolved the state legislative Assembly. On August 5, 2019, Article 370 was abrogated, following which Jammu and Kashmir was divided into two UTs of J&K and Ladakh.

The upcoming Assembly elections will restore an elected government and this election is being held after 10 years

24 polling stns for India's first reusable hybrid Kashmiri migrants rocket 'RHUMI-1' launched

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

Jammu, August 24: The Election Commission (EC) has set up 24 special polling stations in Jammu. Udhampur and New Delhi to facilitate voting by Kashmiri migrants in the upcoming Jammu and Kashmir Assembly elections, a senior official said.

People who were displaced from the Kashmir Valley and are residing in Jammu and Udhampur will not have to fill Form-M, as was done in the Lok Sabha elections, Chief Electoral Officer (CEO), Jammu and Kashmir, Pandurang K Pole said in a statement issued Friday.

Kashmiri migrant voters residing in various relief camps in Jammu. Udhampur, and Delhi, who have opted to cast their votes in person through Electronic Voting Machines (EVMs) in the election, can do so at 24 polling stations -- 19 in Jammu, 1 in Udhampur and 4 in Delhi, he said.

Continuing with the historic decision taken by the ECI during the Lok Sabha elections, the earlier requirement for migrant electors in Jammu and Udhampur to fill out Form-M has been removed, he said.

Electors residing in zones and camps will be mapped to their respective polling stations in Jammu and Udhampur, the CEO added.

The draft roll extracts, mapping migrant electors residing in various zones in Jammu and Udhampur to the respective special polling stations, will be published soon. Any additions, deletions or corrections will be allowed for a period of seven days, Pole said.

Following this, the final photo electoral roll extracts will be published for each polling station, based on which migrant electors will be allowed to vote at these special polling stations like any other voter, by producing the Election Photo Identity Card (EPIC) or any of the 12 alternate photo identity documents notified by the EC, he said.

Migrants residing outside Jammu and Udhampur can now self-certify Form-M, instead of getting it attested by a gazetted officer or other authorities, Pole said

INDO-ASIAN NEWS SERVICE

New Delhi. August 24: Tamil Nadu-based startup Space Zone, in collaboration with the Martin Group Saturday successfully launched India's first reusable hybrid rocket 'RHUMI-1'

RHUMI-1, carrying 3 Cube satellites and 50 PICO satellites was launched to a suborbital trajectory from the Ground Thiruvidandhai, ECR, Chennai using a mobile launcher, the company said.

The satellites aim to collect data for research purposes on global warming and climate change

Equipped with a genericfuel-based hybrid motor and electrically triggered parachute deployer, the rocket is 100 per cent pyrotechnicfree and zero per cent TNT. 'The demand for small satellites in Low Earth Orbit (LEO) is increasing in India," said Anand Megalingam, founder and CEO of Space Zone, in a company blog post, before the launch.

This, he said, prompted "the company to focus on capturing the small satellite market while employing a Hybrid Propulsion system to ensure cost-effectiveness" Mission RHUMI was led by Mylswamy Annadurai, the Moon Man of India, former Director ISRO Satellite Centre (ISAC), and Megalingam as its Mission

Other key features of RHUMI-1 include its angle, which can be fine-tuned from 0 to 120 degrees, allowing precise trajectory control.

The company also built an innovative, cost-effective, and eco-friendly descent mechanism that will ensure the safe recovery of rocket components. The RHUMI-1 rocket combines both liquid and solid fuel propellant systems which will not only improve efficiency > tional costs but will also ensure envi-

ronmental safety The rocket's applications go beyond space exploration to areas such as agriculture, environmental monitoring, and disaster management, the company said.

New Delhi, August 24: The Congress Saturday said "repeated targeting" of minorities in BJP-ruled states is deeply troubling and asserted that 'bulldozer justice' is completely unacceptable and must stop.

The Opposition party's assertion comes after the house of a man who allegedly indulged in violence in Madhya Pradesh's Chhatarpur district during a protest was demolished.

"The house of Shahzad Ali under Kotwali police station limits was demolished. We had registered a case against 150 people for the violence Wednesday. We had named 46 people," an official had said.

Congress president Mallikarjun Kharge said demolishing someone's home and rendering their family homeless is both inhumane and unjust.

"The repeated targeting of minorities in BJP-ruled states is deeply troubling. Such actions have no place in a society governed by the Rule of Law," he said in a post on X.

The Congress strongly condemns the BJP state governments for their blatant disregard of the

The house of the man who allegedly indulged in violence during a protest against remarks by seer Ramgiri Maharaj was demolished Thursday. Ramgiri Maharaj had allegedly made objectionable remarks against Islam at Shah Panchale village in Sinnar taluka of Maharashtra's Nashik district during a religious event some days ago.

Members of the Muslim community had organised a protest Wednesday, but it descended into violence, leading to injuries to two policemen and damage to several vehicles.

Kumari Selja rules out alliance with AAP

New Delhi: Ruling out the possibility of an alliance with the AAP for the Haryana Assembly polls, senior Congress leader Kumari Selja has said her party is strong in the state and will fight the elections on its own. In an interaction with PTI editors at the news agency's headquarters here, the Lok Sabha MP and the party's prominent Dalit face also dismissed the possibility of a hung assembly, asserting that the Congress would secure an "excellent majority" in the 90-member House. Selja also asserted that the Jannayak Janta Party (JJP) has lost a lot of ground in Haryana as it is "breaking up" and does not have a chance in the upcoming polls.

Nagarjuna's property demolished in Hyderabad

Hyderabad: The government authorities Saturday demolished the N-Convention centre in Madhapur here, which is jointly owned by Telugu superstar Nagarjuna, for allegedly being constructed on encroached land on the Full Tank Level of the Tummidikunta lake. Actor Nagarjuna said they had "not done any actions in violation of law" and the demolition was clearly carried out "wrongfully based on misinformation". The property was demolished by Hyderabad Disaster Response and Assets Monitoring and Protection agency. N-Convention is managed by N3 Enterprises and jointly owned by actor-cum-producer Nagarjuna and Nalla Preetham, as per its website.

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

Guwahati, August 24: The prime accused in the rape of a minor girl allegedly escaped from police custody, jumped into a pond and died Saturday morning at Dhing in Assam's Nagaon district, police said.

The villagers of Borbheti, the family home of the accused, have taken a decision not to participate in his funeral prayers and not allow his burial in the village graveyard.

Nagaon Superintendent of Police Swapneel Deka told reporters that the accused, who was arrested Friday, was taken handcuffed to the location where the crime was allegedly committed for a re-creation of the crime scene around 3.30 am.

The SDRF was immediately informed, a search operation was launched and his body was recovered after nearly two hours, he added. The policeman was also injured and admitted to a hospital, the SP said. The other two accused are still absconding and search was continuing with raids conducted at several places Friday night.

The 14-year-old girl was allegedly raped by three persons who came on a motorcycle and surrounded her while she was returning home from tuition on her bicycle at Dhing Thursday evening.

She was left injured and unconscious on the roadside near a pond, before being rescued by locals who informed police.

Kyiv, August 24: A somber atmosphere pervades Ukraine's 33rd Independence Day Saturday, as the nation's war against Russia's aggression reaches a 30-month milestone. No fireworks, parades or concerts are planned and instead Ukrainians will mark the day with commemorations for civilians and soldiers killed in the war.

Ukrainians have flooded social media with messages of gratitude and support, greeting each other and thanking the soldiers on the front lines. In the outpouring of unity, there's a shared acknowledgment that the two-and-a-half vears have been tough, with fatigue increasingly setting in.

President Volodymyr Zelenskyy pointed out that the war started by Russia has now spread to its own territory. 'Those who seek to sow evil on our land will reap its fruits on their own soil," he said, referring to Ukraine's incursion earlier this month into Russia and Ukraine exchanged 115 prisoners of war from each side Saturday after the United Arab Emirates acted as such exchange since Ukraine launched a surprise attack into Russia's Kursk region August 6, the biggest attack inside Russian territory by a foreign power since World War Two. According to the Russian Defense Ministry, the Russian servicemen swapped were captured in the Kursk region. All released Russian soldiers are now in Belarus and will receive medical treatment and rehabilitation upon their return to Russia. The ministry expressed gratitude for the UAE's role in facilitating the prisoner swap.

Prez campaign, endorses Trump

Washington, August 24: Independent presidential candidate Robert F Kennedy Jr abandoned his campaign Friday and endorsed Republican Donald Trump, ending a run that he began as a Democrat trading on one of the most famous names in American politics.

Hours after announcing the endorsement in a press conference, Kennedy joined Trump at a campaign event in Arizona, where the crowd cheered the independent loudly.

"His candidacy has inspired millions and millions of Americans, raised critical issues that have been too long ignored in this country," Trump said of Kennedy. Strategists said it was unclear whether Kennedy's endorsement would help Trump, who is in a tight contest with Democratic Vice President Kamala Harris ahead of the November 5 election. Kennedy, 70, told a news conference earlier that he met with Trump and his aides several times and learned they agreed on issues like border security, free speech and ending wars.

"There are still many issues and approaches on which we continue to have very serious differences. But we are aligned on other key issues," he told reporters.

He reiterated much of that when he joined Trump at the Arizona rally and repeated positions on his core issues of combating chronic illness and ridding the environment and food supply of hazardous chemicals. With Kennedy on stage, the former president said that if he regained the White House, he would create a presidential commission on assassination attempts and release files related to the assassination of President

John F Kennedy in 1963. Robert Kennedy, known by his initials RFK Jr, said he would remove his name from ballots in 10 battleground states likely to determine the outcome of the election and remain as a candidate in other states. An environmental lawyer, antivaccine activist and son and nephew of two titans of Democratic politics who were assassinated during the turbulent 1960s, Kennedy entered the race in April 2023 as a challenger

Democratic nomination. With some voters at the time turned off by both the aging Biden and the legally embattled Trump, interest in Kennedy soared. He later decided to run as an independent, and a November 2023 Reuters/Ipsos poll showed Kennedy with 20% support in a three-way race with

to President Joe Biden for the Biden and Trump. He ran a high-profile advertisement during the February 2024 Super Bowl that invoked his father, US Senator Robert F. Kennedy, and uncle, President Kennedy, and drew outrage from much of his high-profile family. For a time, both the Biden and Trump campaigns showed signs they were worried that Kennedy could draw enough support to change the election outcome.

SPACEX TO RETURN BOEING'S STARLINER ASTRONAUTS FROM SPACE NEXT YEAR, NASA SAYS

Washington, August 24: Two NASA astronauts who flew to the International Space Station in June aboard Boeing's faulty Starliner capsule will need to return to Earth on a SpaceX vehicle early next year, NASA chief Bill Nelson said Saturday, deeming issues with Starliner's propulsion system too risky to carry its first crew home.

The agency's decision, tapping Boeing's top space rival to return the astronauts, is one of NASA's most consequential in years. Boeing had hoped its Starliner test mission would redeem the troubled program after vears of development problems and over $1.6 billion in budget Butch Wilmore and Suni aboard.

FMCG distributors flag growth of quick commerce platforms

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

New Delhi, August 24: FMCG distributors have raised concerns over the 'rapid and unregulated growth' of quick commerce platforms, saying it needs immediate scrutiny.

In a letter written to Commerce & Industry Minister Piyush Goyal, FMCG distributors' body AICPDF said this unchecked expansion of quick commerce platforms, which typically deliver goods within 10 to 30 minutes, is creating an 'uneven playing field', threatening the livelihoods of millions of small retailers and distributors who have been the backbone of India's retail sector for decades.

The All India Consumer Products Distributors Federation (AICPDF) also suspected potential violations of FDI regulations by these quickcommerce companies and sought an immediate investigation into the operational models of these platforms.

The rapid growth of quick commerce platforms like Blinkit, Zepto and Instamart has posed significant challenges to the traditional retail sector and the established fast-moving consumer goods (FMCG) distribution network.

"We are witnessing the erosion of small 'mom-and-pop' stores and a shift in the FMCG distribution landscape, as these platforms are increasingly being appointed as direct distributors by major FMCG companies, side-lining traditional distributors," AICPDF said in the

While raising concerns regarding the compliance of foreign direct investment (FDI) regulations by the quick-commerce platforms, it said AICPDF suspects them of blurring the lines between the marketplace and inventory-based models.

'The FDI rules clearly prohibit e-commerce entities operating under the marketplace model from holding inventory or exercising control over the inventory sold on their platforms. However, it appears that these quick commerce platforms may be engaging in practices that blur the lines between a marketplace and an inventory-based model, potentially violating FDI norms," it noted.

It also requested the government to "initiate a thorough investigation into the operational models of these quick commerce platforms to ensure compliance with FDI regulations" and to "implement protective measures for small retailers and traditional distributors to safeguard their interests and prevent monopolistic practices

AICPDF has urged the government to facilitate a dialogue between all stakeholders, including representatives from the retail sector, FMCG companies and quick commerce platforms, to establish fair and equitable business practices.

It also appreciated Goyal's recent remarks, where he lambasted the e-commerce companies, questioning their business model that has been impacting small retailers in the Earlier this week, the Commerce and Industry Minister had questioned Amazon's announcement of USD 1 billion investment in India, saying the US retailer was not doing any great service to the Indian economy but filling up for the losses it had suffered in the country.

He said that their huge losses in India "smells of predatory pricing," which is not good for the country as it impacts crores of small retailers

The quick-commerce market in India is currently valued at approximately USD 5 billion.

Several FMCG companies, in their latest June quarter earnings, reported a high doubledigit growth coming from quickcommerce in online sales.

In the quick-commerce space, companies like Blinkit, Zepto, and Swiggy's Instamart have established a strong presence. Recently Ola, one of the leading players in the ride-hailing industry, announced entry into

Should brands take a stance on social, political issues

IT IS NOT CLEAR WHETHER ENGAGING IN "BRAND ACTIVISM" ACTUALLY HELPS COMPANIES OVERALL, LEAVING MANY MARKETERS AND CHIEF EXECUTIVES HESITANT TO DO SO

Sydney, August 24: In the immediate aftermath of last month's shocking assassination attempt on US presidential candidate Donald Trump, search engine giant Google found itself in hot water. The reason? A technical issue with its auto-complete function.

Search terms relating to the assassination attempt appeared to be omitted from automated suggestions in Google's search bar. Conservative social media users were quick to pile on, accusing the tech giant of political bias and active censorship.

These claims turned out to be unfounded – a content moderation feature was to blame - but they were hardly new. Many tech companies, including Google, have long been perceived as

But certainly not all of them. Elon Musk, chief executive of both X (formerly Twitter) and electric car maker Tesla, recently announced his full endorsement of Trump, who in turn declared his own support for electric vehicles.

Getting political is nothing new for brands, and extends well beyond tech companies. It can range from taking a stance on key social issues to backing individual parties or candidates.

But it is not clear whether engaging in "brand activism" actually helps companies overall, leaving many marketers and chief executives hesitant to do so.

Taking a stand on issues that consumers care about can obviously help build stronger brand connections - but what happens when a brand's political views don't align with those of its customers?

Our previous research has found that consumers' political allegiance - whether they identify as liberal, conservative or somewhere in between - can affect their attitude towards brands that engage in activism. Much of this is in line with what you'd expect. Liberal-leaning consumers tend to like brands that promote progressive causes such as supporting immigration. Conservative consumers, on the other hand, generally like brands to either be silent on, or oppose, progressive issues.

However, both liberal and conservative consumers dislike brands that seem inauthentic in the position they support. That offers a cautionary tale to brands who might seek to "jump on the bandwagon" and performatively support a particular social issue.

Brands that try to play both sides of the fence on a given social or political issue can end up alienating everyone.

Last year, American beer brand Bud Light faced a backlash from conservatives after hiring transgender influencer Dylan Mulvaney to promote the brand. Conservative consumers were quick to target Mulvaney on social media and boycotted the brand in response to the

But in this aftermath, Bud Light was criticised for failing to stand behind Mulvaney, who said the company failed to offer her support after the backlash. This cost it some of its liberal customer base as well.

Our research shows that while it can help brands if their public stance on an issue aligns with the political views of their target consumers, they must also demonstrate it is more than lip service. Ben & Jerry's ice cream, for example, enjoys a a loyal customer base among liberal-leaning millennials and Gen Z consumers. It has also been vocal in its support for several progressive issues, such as climate action, refugee rights and racial

The company has become famous for such activism, and largely been rewarded for it by consumers, despite some recent tension with its parent company

Ben & Jerry's work on racial justice, for example, has involved issuing detailed statements and action plans on what it believes real societal change would

Done right, consistent alignment of views across a brand's whole public "character" can instil a deep sense of pride amongst the brand's consumers and stronger identification with the brand's values. A brand's public stance should be a genuine reflection of its core values, not something that adjusts to suit the zeitgeist. Brands that demonstrate such conviction are often rewarded. In 2018, Nike supported civil rights activist and former footballer Colin Kaepernick and his stance on Black Lives Matter by launching the "Believe in Something" campaign. The move came despite serious backlash from conservative consumers aswell as then-US president Donald Trump.

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

New Delhi, August 24: A bit of selfishness, they say, is a necessary trait in the make-up of elite athletes. But Shikhar Dhawan remained an altruist through a career punctuated with innumerable bursts of brilliance, an outlook that was at times annoyingly positive, and without hyperbolic excesses.

When the great Sachin Tendulkar presented Dhawan with the Test cap, he told him, "We know about your guts. Show us some.

Well, he showed guts, and more. Tenacity, resourcefulness, selflessness and the willingness to sacrifice for the team's sake defined his international career, his time in the Indian Premier League and his outings on the domestic circuit. He did so while always sporting a smile.

Scroll through his social media pages and one would struggle to find a cryptic tweet after being ignored by India selectors. No sly digs, no sarcasm-laden posts, no frills - that's not how he operated even while he was facing upheavals in his personal life. All along, he carried himself with grace and dignity as his fans stood by him.

He would wish his fellow colleagues luck and pray for the success. It didn't matter whether he was part of the team

For reference, one can go back to the heartfelt note he penned after the Indian team was announced for last year's ODI World Cup at home. He did the same before this year's T20 World Cup in the Americas where India triumphed to end an 11-year ICC tournament title drought.

An excerpt from his retirement aptly defines his character.

... And that's why I tell myself, don't be sad that you won't play for India again but be happy that you played for your country. And that's the biggest thing for me, that I played," he said in his concluding remarks in the social media post Saturday morning.

Incidentally, the last time India won an ICC title -- the 2013 Champions Trophy in England -- Dhawan played a vital role and won the player of the tournament award for his exploits at the top of the order in seaming conditions.

Indian cricket's 'Gabbar', who made the thigh-clap celebration his trademark, didn't enjoy a memorable beginning to his international career, getting dismissed for a two-ball duck against Australia in an ODI in Visakhapatnam.

However, after the initial struggles in top-flight, Dhawan returned to the Indian team in 2013 and cemented his place across all three formats with some scintillating performances.

The highlight of his career was the brilliant 187 he scored against Australia on Test debut in Mohali, having raced to his century in just 85 balls with a flurry of boundaries

Paris Paralympics flame beginning exceptional journey

ASSOCIATED PRESS

Paris. August 24: Two weeks after French star swimmer Léon Marchand extinguished the Olympic flame to close the Paris Olympics, the spotlight is now on its Paralympic counterpart.

The flame will be lit Saturday in Stoke Mandeville, a village northwest of London widely considered the birthplace of the Paralympic Games. The flame will then travel to France under the English Channel for a fourday relay from Atlantic Ocean shores to Mediterranean beaches, from mountains in the Pyrenees to the Alps.

Its journey will end in Paris Wednesday during the Paralympics opening ceremony - with the lighting of a unique Olympic cauldron attached to a hot-air balloon that will fly over the French capital every evening during 11 days of competition.

Flame lighting

The lighting ceremony of the Paralympic Heritage Flame Saturday will be held in Buckinghamshire, where the Stoke Mandeville Games were first held in 1948 for a small group of wheelchair athletes who had sustained spinal injuries during World War II.

The man behind the idea was Ludwig Guttmann, a Jewish neurosurgeon who fled Nazi Germany and worked at Britain's Stoke Mandeville hospital. At the time, suffering a spinal iniury was considered a death sentence, and patients were discouraged from moving.

Guttmann made the patients sit up and work muscles, and hit upon competition as way to keep them motivated. Those later grew into the first Paralympic Games, which took place in Rome in 1960. The Heritage Flame ceremony in Stoke Mandeville was first held ahead of the London Paralympics in 2012.

New Delhi: Pistol marksman Manish Narwal Saturday expressed confidence in the Indian shooting contingent surpassing its Tokyo Paralympics medal tally at the upcoming Paris Games, saying the "intense" training would hold the team in good stead. A 10-member shooting contingent, including rifle exponent Avani Lekhara, Mona Agarwal and Narwal, will compete at the Chateauroux Centre near Paris from August 30. India had won two gold, a silver and two bronze medals at the Tokyo Paralympics. "Our preparations have been intense, and we are eager to give our best shot in Paris. We aim to surpass our previous performance and bring more medals home," said Narwal, who had won the 50m pistol (SH1) gold in Tokyo and will be competing in 10m air pistol at the Paris Games, before the team's departure on Saturday. Besides Narwal, Avani and Mona, the other members of the shooting contingent are Amir Ahmad Bhat, Rudransh Khandelwal, Rubina Francis, Swaroop Unahalkar, Sidhartha Babu, Shriharsha Devaraddi and Nihal Singh. The spotlight will be on reigning Paralympic champion Avani, who had made history by becoming the first woman shooter from India to win two medals in Tokyo. The Jaipur shooter, then 19, had clinched gold in 10m air rifle and 50m rifle 3-positions (SH1). She would look to replicate her gold
